A surge in inter-tribal fighting as well as conflict between the Sudanese Armed Forces and armed movements has led to the forced displacement of more than 300,000 people since the beginning of the year, including at least 27,000 people who crossed into Chad. In addition, humanitarian assistance continues to be provided to 1.4 million people already in the 99 camps across Darfur.